

Azi goes Aztrovivial 🧭 Come along for lasting Societal Shifts 🏄

I grew up in Dagestan, inside systems that failed the people living in them. Finding the way out — toward systems that actually care — became the question of my working life. Today I pursue it through SundRoot: synthesizing models, methods and tools for creating systemic shifts towards caring & inventive societies. Through local economies that are self-sustaining, self-improving and self-growing, I strive to contribute to bottom-up alliances and mechanisms that shift the resources toward convivial ecosystems that serve all life.

my ikigai map

What I love

Creativity, play, movement and learning · Nature ·
Envisioning convivial worlds

What I'm good at

Systems mapping, research & synthesis · Co-learning · Asking root cause questions

What the world needs

Economies of care · Self-sustaining regenerative communities · Common sense governance

What I can make a living doing

Guiding philanthropic capital to effective strategies · Seeding compounding societal return on investment.

offering

Working with a philanthropic organization for six months, every other week, to distill effective strategies for lasting change — initiating processes for systemic shifts: igniting self-sustaining engines whose chain reactions compound and grow in positive effect over time. See examples at www.convivial.systems

seed → engine → chain reaction → compounding change

Curious? Let's map it out together

azi@aztrovivial.systems